The Tango Machine

Musical Culture in the Age of Expediency

Morgan James Luker

“In the process of developing his masterful model of musical culture in the age of expediency, Luker addresses many aspects of musical life that have all too often been neglected by ethnomusicologists, including the roles of NGOs, diverse kinds of media companies, government policies, and international cultural heritage projects.”—Anthony Seeger, University of California, Los Angeles

Tigers of a Different Stripe

Performing Gender in Dominican Music

Sydney Hutchinson

“A highly sophisticated and welcome engagement with the shifting terrain of genre and gender in the merengue típico of the Dominican Republic. Spanning forty years, Tigers of a Different Stripe explores a series of key artists and performers and makes a much-needed, deeply insightful, and timely addition to the ethnomusicological literature on gender in the Caribbean.”

—Michael Largey, author of Vodou Nation

ethnomusicology

Edited by Ellen Koskoff

Official journal of the Society for Ethnomusicology

Ethnomusicology (ETM) is the premier publication in the field. Its scholarly articles represent current theoretical perspectives and research in ethnomusicology and related fields, while playing a central role in expanding the discipline in the United States and abroad. As the official journal of the Society for Ethnomusicology, Ethnomusicology is aimed at a diverse audience of musicologists, anthropologists, folklorists, cultural studies scholars, musicians, and others; this inclusive journal also features book, recording, film, video, and multimedia reviews. Peer-reviewed by the Society's international membership, Ethnomusicology has been published three times a year since the 1950s.

Institutional subscriptions to ETM start at $148.00.
