OPEN ACCESS AND SELF-ARCHIVING POLICY

The Journal of Finnish Studies allows immediate self-archiving, by our contributors, of the published version of their own articles, in institutional repositories—with proper reference to the Journal of Finnish Studies volume, issue, and page numbers. With a 6-month embargo starting from the month of publication, the Journal of Finnish Studies also allows such self-archiving through public websites.

All volumes of the Journal of Finnish Studies are available for electronic download from the journal's website ("Covers and Contents"), with a twelve-month delay from issue date for the benefit of our paying subscribers. Since no government subsidies support academic journals in the United States, our traditional subscriptions are what makes it possible for us to continue publishing serious academic research, in English, about Finland and the Finnish diaspora for a global audience.

Subscriptions to the Journal of Finnish Studies are available through our website: https://www.shsu.edu/eng_ira/finnishstudies/JoFS_subs_and_ads.html.

For a cumulative bibliography of articles published in the Journal of Finnish Studies, see https://www.shsu.edu/eng_ira/finnishstudies/JoFS_Articles.pdf.

Hardcopies of back issues are available directly from the editor at jofinnishstudies@gmail.com.

Cover: Coat of arms of Tampere. "The arms show a wavy golden bend for the rapids around which the town developed. The blacksmith's hammer and caduceus are symbols for industry and trade." (<https://www.heraldry-wiki.com/heraldry-wiki/index.php?title=Tampere>). Design by Olof Eriksson.

The Journal of Finnish Studies expresses its gratitude to Finlandia Foundation National for the generous grant provided for the production of this theme issue. We also thank Suomi-Seura (Finland Society) for the media grant. The Journal of Finnish Studies is also grateful to the Department of English and the College of Humanities and Social Sciences at Sam Houston State University for the important institutional support provided during the year 2020.
