The Journal of Olympic Studies is the official publication of the Center for Sociocultural Sport and Olympic Research (CSSOR) and aspires to be the preeminent international multidisciplinary, peer-reviewed scholarly journal in the field of Olympic research. The Journal publishes high quality academic work on the Olympic and Paralympic Movements, in all of its forms, from scholars in the fields of history, philosophy, management, communication, classics, literature, anthropology, cultural studies, economics, marketing, and law.

General Submission Guidelines

- Authors should follow the Chicago Manual of Style (17th edition).
- Manuscripts must be in English. If this is not the first language of the author, contributions should be checked for grammar and syntax, prior to submission, by a person fluent in academic English. It is not the responsibility of the editorial team to redraft articles into an acceptable form and manuscripts which do not meet the required standard will be returned. American conventions in spelling and punctuation should be used throughout.
- The author's name should appear on the cover page only as manuscripts are evaluated anonymously.
- An abstract of no more than 150 words should be included at the beginning of the article.
- 3 or 4 "keywords" should be included at the beginning of the article following the abstract.
- The entire article, including block quotations, endnotes, and figure captions should be double-spaced with at least a one-inch margin on all sides. All pages should be numbered consecutively throughout. Manuscripts should not exceed 10,000 words including notes.
- Authors are responsible for obtaining any copyright permissions.
- Tables and graphs should be sent as separate files, not as part of the main text, and clear indication given as to their appropriate position within the article.
- Illustrations are encouraged but not required. At submission stage an indication of suitable material is all that is necessary as precise details will be determined once an article has been accepted for publication.
- Articles should be submitted electronically to the Journal of Olympic Studies online manuscript submission system available at <https://www.press.uillinois.edu/journals/jos/submissions.html>. This secure, personalized resource will allow you to track your manuscript through each step of the review and acceptance process. To begin, set up your personal account and upload your submission at <https://ojs.press.uillinois.edu/index.php/jos/login>. Your transmitted material will be reviewed as soon as possible.

For more detailed submissions information, please see <https://www.press.uillinois.edu/journals/jos/submissions.html>. Articles accepted for the Journal of Olympic Studies should demonstrate international quality of scholarship, rigor and analysis. It would also be an advantage in terms of likely publication if the piece addresses a significant issue, even if only by contextualization, and is likely to be widely cited. All articles generally go to two referees, at least one (and preferably two) of whom are members of the Editorial Board. The comments of the reviewers are then edited and a collective review is sent to the author.
