A bold challenge to human cruelty and indifference

“At a time when the necessity for animal experimentation has been called more and more into doubt, the Linzeys show how deep-seated research paradigms, institutional inertia, and money from the biomedical industry can persuade an esteemed university like Oxford to press on with practices that to any dispassionate observer must seem barbaric. Their analysis is backed up by an impressive set of essays by philosophers, lawyers, and scientists.”

—J. M. Coetzee, Nobel Laureate for Literature

“Essential reading. A comprehensive ethical analysis of animal experiments.”

—Sir David Madden, Senior Member, St Antony's College, Oxford

Animal Ethics for Veterinarians

Veterinarians serve on the front lines against animal suffering and abuse. For centuries, their compassion and expertise have greatly reduced that suffering. Yet we now live in an era where more and more people ask questions about the ethical considerations that lie behind common veterinary practices.

Made up of articles originally published in the Journal of Animal Ethics (JAE), this Common Threads volume offers veterinarians and others a primer on key issues in the field.
